

THE PAPERS STOLEN

And the Famous Clouston Case Suddenly Interrupted.

A SENSATION AT PARKERSBURG.

Through the Negligence of a State Officer All the Evidence in the Cases is "Swiped" from a Hotel Waiting Room—Clouston Under Arrest Charged With Hiring Two Negroes to Steal the Box Containing the Papers—The Suspects in Jail—More Developments Expected.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 12.—This city is in a state of excitement over the robbery at the Blennerhassett hotel of the papers in the Clouston case. They were taken from the hotel this evening, and cannot be found high nor low. Clouston himself is charged with hiring a negro to steal them and give them to him, and it is said Clouston burned them. If so, this destroys all the evidence in the famous case. The papers, forged certificates, checks, etc., were all in the stolen box.

Two colored men, Wilson Jackson and Charles Webb, the latter a porter at the Blennerhassett, are in jail charged with the theft.

The Clouston cases were continued at yesterday's term of court, and T. Hill Marshall was preparing to leave on the train when he discovered the box was gone. A warrant was issued for Clouston and he was arrested at 7:30, and is now in the hands of the sheriff.

The questions being asked are: "What is to be thought of the carelessness of the state officials in thus allowing so valuable a package to get away? What could Hill Marshall (Auditor Daily's representative) have been thinking of to allow the papers in this case to lie around a waiting room of a hotel?"

The end is not yet and cannot be foretold.

A REAL HERO'S DEATH.

After Undescribable Suffering, Borne with Fortitude, Captain Drake Dies From Effects of Exposure During the War. Captain Davenport Delivers an Eloquent Eulogy.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 12.—Andrew Mathew Post No. 14, G. A. R., yesterday conducted the funeral of one of its honored veterans, who died as he had lived—heroically. Capt. A. L. Drake, the deceased soldier, was prominent in Grand Army circles and was known to almost every man, woman and child in this country. He died Sunday, after suffering for three months such pain as was probably never known to mortal before. He was a member of the Fifteenth West Virginia Regiment.

Capt. Drake contracted a disease of the stomach while on the field, from which he never fully recovered, but which assumed such a frightful character about three months ago that it partook of the horrible. He was also afflicted with heart trouble and could not lie down at all, but had to take what little rest he got sitting on his chair. A short time since blood poisoning set in, going downward in his body instead of up, and soon gangrene supervened, affecting his feet first. The physicians seeing that amputation was necessary, so informed the patient, and also told him that they could not give him chloroform or anything of like nature to relieve the pain on account of the heart trouble. He knew this anyhow and told them to go ahead. They first cut off his left foot just below the ankle, hoping to save as much of the limb as possible. The old veteran sat in his chair like a hero and looked at the dreadful operation without flinching. In a few hours it was discovered that another amputation was necessary, as the gangrene was rapidly going upward. This time the leg was taken off below the knee and the progress of the disease was stopped in that limb.

But then the horrible discovery was made that the other foot was becoming affected, and that, too, was amputated, the brave old soldier watching all of these operations. His fortitude was fast giving way, however, under the terrible strain, and he could not rally after the last operation. His death under the circumstances was peculiarly sad and affecting.

After the funeral sermon had been preached, Capt. B. B. Davenport, of Wheeling, the dead hero's old comrade in arms, who happened to be in the city and attended the funeral, delivered an eulogy over the dead body of his comrade who had marched through the Wilderness with him, that for pathos, eloquence and heartfelt feeling could scarcely be surpassed. There wasn't a dry eye in the large audience, and the body of the dead soldier, who gave up his life for his country, was lowered to its last resting place amid the tears of the people and the flowers of the valley.

DEATH OF CYRUS FIELD.

The Great Financier and the Promoter of the Atlantic Cable Passes Away.

CYRUS W. FIELD.

DONBS FERRY, N. Y., July 12.—Cyrus W. Field, the famous promoter of the Atlantic cable project, died at 9:30 o'clock this morning. He was attacked early this morning by one of the violent spells of delirium which have occurred so frequently during his illness. Dr. Conant was at once summoned from Tarrytown, but his services were of no avail, and in less than three hours the aged financier was dead. At the time of his death there were present at the bedside Mr. Field's three brothers, David Dudley Field, the Rev. Henry M. Field and Justice Stephen J. Field, his daughter, Mrs. Isabella Judson, and her two sons, Cyrus Field Judson and Frank Judson. Mr. Field had been suffering from physical and mental exhaustion brought on by the many troubles which have overtaken him during the past year.

Cyrus W. Field was born at Stockbridge, Mass., in 1819. At the age of 15 he became a clerk in a New York mercantile house, and prospered so rapidly that within a few years he was head of a large business. As early as 1832 he became interested in the possibilities of the submarine telegraphy, and the great idea of laying a trans-Atlantic cable soon grew so upon him that its accomplishment became the ambition of his life. Obtaining from the legislature of Newfoundland, in 1854, the exclusive right for fifty years to connect that colony by cable with Europe, he associated with him Peter Cooper, Marshall O. Roberts, Wilson G. Hunt and other New York capitalists and began the work, which, after many disappointments, was completed in 1858. Honors were showered upon him. Congress gave him a gold medal and a nation's thanks. Only the fact that he was a citizen of another country prevented him receiving the highest honors the British Government could bestow. The Paris exposition of 1857 honored him with its grand medal. The sentiments of the civilized world were voiced by John Bright, when he declared him to be "the Columbus of modern times, who by his cable had moored the new world alongside the old."

Mr. Field was associated with many enterprises, among them being the elevated railroads of New York City. He accumulated a big fortune, but owing to a series of misfortunes in recent years he died comparatively poor.

UNITED STATES COURT.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 12.—The United States grand jury was discharged to-day and the business of this term is drawing to a close.

The United States vs. Shields and others, the "short term" insurance men from Wheeling, was continued.

Judge Jackson decided the case of the United States vs. Mendenhall, administrator of Taylor, who was on the bond of a pension agent named Sutton. The judge dismissed the bill on the ground that the statute of limitation would have operated in a suit at law and by analogy it should hold good in a court of equity.

A United States prisoner named Ferguson, from Huntington, was acquitted of a charge of violating a United States law and was released. Captain Mehan arrested him on another charge. He is wanted for breaking into a car on the Chesapeake & Ohio and taking about $500 worth of goods. He was taken to Huntington this morning with a United States prisoner named Tom Arthur by James White, a Chesapeake & Ohio detective. Arthur will be used as a witness against Ferguson.

The hotel has been enlarged by the addition of forty rooms and will be well filled this summer. About fifty wheelmen visited Zoar last Sunday. More people would go from Martin's Ferry to spend Sunday if the trains were more convenient. They will probably be better after the new schedule goes into effect. There is talk of a Sunday train.

BELLAIRE.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City.

Francis Donavin was bound over to the common pleas court yesterday by Squire Cooper in the sum of $200 for his part in the assault upon Wigfield in the B. & O. yard the other night. Neither of the other brothers has yet been found. In the meantime Wigfield's condition grows more serious. One eye is entirely gone and the other one is seriously affected. The attack upon him seems to have been planned. In addition to the circumstances pointing to this, there is direct testimony of an understanding having been made by the Donavins.

The John McLuckie, who is now burgess at Homestead, and who is doing much talking in connection with the trouble there, was once a resident of this city. He, with a man who has since gone to the bad in Wheeling, was the cause of a strike at the Bellaire steel plant, and he kept the plant here idle until fellow workmen paid him $200 to get out of the way and let the works run. He was to leave town, but he hung around here until he finally vanished and turned up as an official and agitator in Homestead.

The case of Mrs. Minnie Smith against John Maule for the alleged illegal sale of liquor to her husband was tried before the mayor yesterday and argued in the evening by Messrs. Smith and Tallman, the attorneys, pro and con, but the mayor had not rendered a decision last night. The case is likely to go higher whichever side loses.
